The story of Niobe

Graeci et Romani credebant deos et deas nonnumquam crudeles esse. unam fabulam praesertim narrabant, quae monstrabat quantum periculum hominibus esset, si deos vexaverint.

Niobe erat femina pulchra quae in Asia Minor habitabat. uxor erat regis qui regnum magnum habebat. Niobe septem filios et septem filias pepererat. 'quam felix sum,' inquit regina. 'plurimos liberos habeo. maxime gaudeo. felicissima omnium mortalium sum.'

rex, cum haec verba audivisset, ad reginam progressus, dixit, 'cave, uxor. si dei te audient, certe irati erint. nemo felicius est deis.' sic eam hortatus est ut cauta esset. sed uxor, his verbis auditis, stulte respondit: 'felicissima vere sum. Leto enim, mater Apollinis et Dianae, duos liberos habet, sed ego quattuordecim.'

rex, ex aula egressus, ad templum celerrime festinavit, ut veniam a deis peteret. multas preces Apollini et sorori eius obtulit, verba mollia loquens. Leto tamen, quae omnia audiverat, iratissima erat. filia filioque arcessitis dea mandata dedit. eis imperavit ut liberos Niobis sagittis necarent. duo dei promiserunt se statim ad urbem regis profecturos esse, ultionem pro matre obtinere in animo habentes.

The story continues cum liberi Latonis celeriter iter confecissent, advenerunt ad urbem in 1 qua Niobe habitabat. eo tempore filii eius extra urbem corpora exercebant. 2 alii currebant, alii tela iaciebant, laete clamantes. Apollo, arcum tenens, 3 sagittam cepit qua primum iuvenem necaret. sagitta subito emissa, 4 iuvenis, vulnus grave passus, terram cecidit. mox sex plures mortui 5 iacebant, sagittis percussi et multum sanguinis fundentes. 6 septem filiis ita necatis, mater tristissima funus dabat. Niobe imperavit 7 filiabus ut corpora fratrum in atrium ferrent. 8

Diana in aulam intravit. in atrium ingressa, filias lacrimantes invenit. tam irata erat Diana ut statim eas omnes oppugnaret. Niobe in corpus nati 9 minimae filiae se iecit ut eam servaret, sed frustra. Niobe adeo lacrimabat 10 ut in lapidem mutaretur. hodie sunt ei qui credunt faciem feminae in 11 monte posse videri. 12
